SCHOOL LAWS

Passed at the Regular Session of the General Assembly of 1891-'92.

CHAPTER 6.
An act to authorize the Commonwealth of Kentucky to borrow and use certain money belonging to, and which is a part of, the school fund, and to execute bond for the same, and declaring an emergency.

Be it enacted by the General Assembly of the Commonwealth of Kentucky: 1. That the Governor of this Commonwealth is hereby authorized and directed to execute the bond of the Commonwealth of Kentucky to, and in favor of the State Board of Education, for the sum of $600,641.03, being the amount of Kentucky's share of the "Direct Tax" returned to the State in 1892, pursuant to act of Congress, bearing interest at the rate of six per cent. per annum from date until paid, said interest to be paid semi-annually on the first day of January and July of each year; and said bond shall be attested by the Secretary of State, and then delivered to said Board of Education for the Commonwealth of Kentucky.

it shall be paid to the Chairman of the Board, who shall at once apply the same to the payment of the bonds and interest. When the bonds and interest are paid, the tax shall not be levied or collected, nor shall the trustees, or any of them, receive any compensation for their services under this act.

5. The bonds herein provided for shall be signed by the Chairman of the Board of Trustees of the graded schools. No bonds shall be issued on account of any indebtedness that had not been contracted at the time of the adoption of the present Constitution. No tax collector appointed under the provisions of this act shall commence the discharge of the duties of his office until he has appeared in the County Court of the county in which the graded school is situated and taken the oath of office and executed, with good sureties, a bond similar to that prescribed by law for other tax collectors. Before the Chairman of the Board of Trustees shall receive tax collected as provided for by section 4, he shall execute in the county court a bond, with good surety, conditioned for his faithful application of the money that may come to his hands. If he shall fail or decline to give such bond, then the Sheriff or collector shall hold the taxes collected, subject to be paid out upon the bonds as ordered by the Board of Trustees. The collecting officer and the Chairman of Board of Trustees shall settle their accounts with the board on or before the first Monday in January each year, and the board may require them to state their accounts as often as once every three months.

6. It appeared to be necessary for the interest of the public in the graded schools, where buildings have been completed but not paid for, that this act shall take effect from its approval by the Governor, it is therefore declared that an emergency exists, and that this act shall be in force and effect from that day.

Approved March 18, 1892.

CHAPTER 52.
An act to amend an act, entitled "An act for the benefit of graded schools," approved March 18, 1892.

Be it enacted by the General Assembly of the Commonwealth of Kentucky: 1. That section 1 of an act, entitled "An act for the benefit of graded schools," approved March 18, 1892, be, and the same is hereby, amended, and as amended, it shall read as follows, to wit: "That the Board of Trustees of Graded Schools maintain- ed by taxation, and designed for the education of children residing within certain boundaries, may, in certain cases where the tax now imposed in such districts is not sufficient to pay for the school buildings which have heretofore been completed, but not paid for, issued the bonds of such districts for an amount equal to the sum due for completing the school buildings, and impose annually a tax of not exceeding twenty-five cents on each one hundred dollars' worth of property in the district, in addition to the tax now imposed in such districts, to pay the bonds so issued and the interest thereon; and the foregoing provisions shall apply as well to like schools, under the authority and management of a Board of Education or other authority of a district, town or city; and in cases where bonds were issued prior to the adoption of the present Constitution by authority of special laws, and have matured without being paid, the Board of Trustees, Board of Education, or other authority of a town, city or district, may issue the bonds on the district, town or city to an amount equal to the sum still due and unpaid, under the conditions and restrictions herein imposed."

2. That for reasons stated in section six of the act to which this is an amendment, an emergency exists for the immediate taking effect of this act; it shall, therefore, take effect and be in force from its approval by the Governor.

Approved July 7, 1892.

CHAPTER 53.
An act providing that Trustees of private schools shall be ineligible as Trustees of common schools.

Whereas, in some school districts in this Commonwealth it happens one or more individuals are elected trustees of the common schools, and appointed or elected trustee of a private school, holding both offices at the same time; and whereas, these two offices conflict with the best interests of the common school; therefore,

Be it enacted by the General Assembly of the Commonwealth of Kentucky: 1. That persons holding the office of Trustee of any private school shall be ineligible to hold the office of Trustee of any common school in this Commonwealth.

2. This act shall take effect and be in force from its passage and approval.

Approved June 1, 1892.

CHAPTER 54.

A Credit to the City.
The Lexington Business College Company. Commended for its enterprise to equip the Commercial Department of the State College with a model structure adapted to its growing needs. Lexington never did a more commendable thing than when a large number of her most enterprising citizens associated themselves together for the purpose of further developing the Commercial Department of the State A. and M. College, which, owing to a lack of sufficient aid from the State, has not received attention commensurate with its importance. Seeing this need, about fifty or sixty public-spirited men have purchased one of the best sites in Lexington and planned to erect upon it a handsome four-story building, with an Oolitic Limestone front and Tennessee marble trimmings.

The lighting and ventilating of the rooms will be perfect, and the building will not only be equipped with all modern conveniences, but with appliances for thorough and practical teaching, and will be far superior to any school of the kind in the South. The greatest enthusiasm prevails among the projectors of this enterprise and they confidently assert that they propose making this the finest business college in America, and it is now in point of thoroughness and practical instruction equal to any.

Professor Calhoun, who has made such a reputation for the thorough, practical work of the school, will continue to act as principal, so not only Lexington but the entire Commonwealth has just cause for feeling gratified at the liberal educational interest which is being developed in our midst, and the great addition which is being made to our State College.

An act for the benefit of graded schools.

Be it enacted by the General Assembly of the Commonwealth of Kentucky: 1. That the Board of Trustees of graded schools maintained by taxation and designed for the education of children residing within certain boundaries may, in cases where the tax now imposed in such districts is not sufficient to pay for the school buildings which have heretofore been completed, but not paid for, issued the bonds of such districts for an amount equal to the sum due for completing the school buildings, and impose annually a tax of not exceeding twenty-five cents on each one hundred dollars' worth of property in the district, in addition to the tax now imposed in such districts, to pay the bonds so issued and the interest thereon.

2. The bonds so issued shall not bear exceeding six per cent. per annum, and shall be payable at such times, and at such places, and in such amounts, as they may determine; and the tax to pay the bonds and interest shall be imposed by an order signed by a majority of the Trustees, specifying the annual tax to be imposed.

3. The tax so imposed shall be collected by the assessment value of the property in the district, as ascertained by the assessment made for the State and county purposes next preceding the collection of the tax, and may be collected by Sheriff of the county, or by a collector appointed for that purpose by the Board of Trustees; and the collector or Sheriff shall have the same power in collection of such tax as he has in the collection of State tax, and the same penalties shall be added for a failure to pay the same, and it shall be collected at the same time and in the same manner as the State tax; and the same compensation shall be paid for its collection as is paid for collecting the State revenue.

FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 18, 1892.

TRUTH crushed to earth will rise again.

HENRY WATTESSON would have a hard time getting a job in our office as a prophet.

ALL that is the matter with Ohio county is, too many men stamped under the rooster.

We rise to second the motion of Mr. Scott that the election of Cleveland be made unanimous.

It may be that we can't see ourselves as others see us, but we will swear we can't just see where the "whoop pee" comes in.

SOME of our Kentucky exchanges are enthusiastic over the probability of Senator Carlisle getting a place in Cleveland's Cabinet.

THE hungry Democrats are beginning to whet their appetites for office pie. It has been a long time since they had a square meal.

THE Winchester Democrat says: "Ex-Governor Buckner has been appointed overseer of a road running near his home, and it goes without saying that we will have a good road."

BEAR WING was captured a few days ago in New Orleans. It will be remembered he murdered his wife, Marian Eaves Wing, in Louisville a short time ago, and he was brought there to be tried for his dastardly deed.

MISS JOSIE DUKE, the beautiful and accomplished daughter of Mr. T. S. Duke, of this place, has been elected Superintendent of Common Schools in Park county, Montana. Miss Duke has many friends here who are glad to hear of her success.

We want a good, live correspondent in each neighborhood in the county, one that will give all the local happenings, personals, etc. Our circulation extends over the entire county and your neighbors would be glad to hear from your locality, so begin at once, and write every week.

THE great and illustrious Abraham Lincoln once said: "You may fool all the people some times; you may fool some of the people all the time." This is about the attitude of the Democratic party is at present, just how they will fool the people four years hence is a problem already being agitated.

We do not know how reliable it is, but we understand that an office-hungry Democrat, of one of Ohio county's little hamlets, grew so enthusiastic in the great work of circulating his little petition that he rode all night and while out his horse fell and came near breaking his [the hungry Democrat's] neck. Verily the unwashed, in their haste for pie, are getting on a break-neck gait.

THE Republican party has done more for the common people than any other party that ever existed, and though defeated in our last campaign and its colors have gone down amid the din and smoke of a political battle; yet it points in mute silence to the beneficent laws pertaining to protection, reciprocity, pensions and honest money, and silently defies Democracy to touch a single line of either.

LAST Tuesday the death watch was placed on the four condemned murderers, who are confined in the Louisville Jail, who are to be hung on the morning of December 6. They are Dennis McCarthy, Stephen Hite, Nelson Lewis and Grant Thomas. The last named two are colored. McCarthy, in a family fight, last December, shot and killed his wife, Hite, stabbed and killed a man by the name of Baerman, last Christmas. Lewis, last February, shot a negro at a dance, killing him instantly, and Thomas, through jealousy, shot and killed his sweetheart. All of them will be hung on the morning of the above date, in the yard of the Louisville Jail.

Why can't Hartford have a pike to Beaver Dam? She needs it. More than money enough to build it is lost every ten years in the increased cost of transportation. On a pike two horses will pull with ease more than four can possibly pull over our winter mud-holes, called roads. Time and money would both be saved. It would be an advantage to the entire Southern part of the county. Why couldn't the county give the road-bed from Hartford to Beaver Dam? We fail to see any reason why they should not. Citizens think about these things, but don't try to do it all by thinking. Thinking is very necessary it is true, but then action must do her part also. 'Rah, for the pike!

Now, that the great and lesser political battles are over and the smoke cleared away, it is time for the people to turn their attention to other important questions—roads for instance. There are few questions that concern the people so vitally as does their mode of transportation. Prosperity and every day convenience even go to a greater extent—happily itself, depends upon the system of transportation. It goes without saying that Ohio county winter roads are, as a rule, exceedingly bad. In summer and until the fall rains, we have, perhaps, as good roads as can be found anywhere but when winter comes they are miserable mud-holes throughout. There is no system at all about road-working. Nobody takes any pride in it; everybody dreads it; everybody shirks it as long as possible. The great trouble lies in our road system. In short, the people need to be relieved of this onerous task, the burden should be equalized and the roads worked by taxation. Think about it.

The Chicago Inter-Ocean, says: "Though defeated, there is no reason why Republicans should be cast down. They have made a grand fight for principles, and defeat does not change or make less vital to the prosperity of the country the principles they fought for. Republicans can only hope that since their opponents are in power they will be allowed to engrain their ideas on the laws of the land and let the people judge from actual experience which are the wisest friends of the republic."

"It is no time now to go into a discussion of the methods by which this triumph over the Republican party has been achieved, but when they have been carefully studied there will be found nothing discreditable in the record of the men who contended for the rights of men and the rights of labor."

"If, misled by sophistries, the laboring men of the country have been the means of defeating those who were working in their interests, experience will teach them the folly of their action. We were never more impressed with the fact that protection to American labor is necessary, than as we write these lines in the shadow of defeat. There is but one other alternative, and that is to put our labor on a plane with the labor of the old world. The cause that is just is never lost. The misguided will see the error of their ways and truth will yet prevail."

For Better Roads.

Boston, Nov. 13.—Col. A. A. Pope has issued the following petition, which is to be sent all over the country and sent to Congress:

"We, the undersigned citizens of the United States, hereby most respectfully petition that there be founded in the city of Washington, in the District of Columbia, a road department, similar to the Agricultural Department, for the purpose of promoting knowledge in the art of constructing and maintaining roads, and we ask that in such department provisions be made for teaching students so that they may become skilled road engineers. In connection with the road department we request that there be established a permanent exhibit, in which shall be shown sections of road illustrations, various methods of construction, and also, the best road material and machinery."

"We further petition that Congress appropriate funds sufficient to erect a building at the World's Columbian Exposition for the purpose of a comprehensive road exhibit."

FRANKFORT, Ky., Nov. 14.—Gov. Brown issued his Thanksgiving proclamation to-day. The document reads as follows:

Commonwealth of Kentucky, Executive Department.—In observance of a long-established custom, I respectfully recommend that Thursday, the 24th day of November, be set apart as a day of thanksgiving and prayer by all the citizens of our beloved Commonwealth. We have escaped pestilence and enjoy peace and abundance. Almighty God has, since the last day of thanksgiving, peculiarly blessed our State and the Republic. Let us return thanks for his unbounded goodness and mercies. Let it be a day of charities, full of kindness and remembrances of the afflicted and the poor.

In testimony, I have hereunto set my hand and caused the great seal of the Commonwealth to be affixed. Done at Frankfort this, the 14th day of November, in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and ninety-two, and in the one hundred and first year of the Commonwealth.

JOHN YOUNG BROWN, By the Governor: JOHN W. HEADLEY, Secretary of State.

BEAVER DAM.

Nov. 14.—The election has come and gone and every thing passed off exceedingly quiet at this place. The people are delighted with the new method of voting. There were but two or three at this place that lost their votes by exposing them.

Mr. James Peters, of this place, has moved to Taylor Mines.

Henry and Steve Stevens have bought three lots in town and contemplated building a house in the early spring.

The Mill Company are having quite an addition put to their Mill. This will give them a great deal more room.

George Hodges, of Owls Valley, Hardin County, is again engaged at the depot. We are always glad to see George's pleasant face.

There was quite a pleasant social given at R. S. Taylor's, on last Saturday night. Those present from a distance were, Miss Nannie Ellis and Fleetwood Ward, Miss Mattie Chinn and Sherman Stevens, Charley Godshaw and a Mr. Shown, all of Beda, Charlie Ellis, of Kinderhook.

Miss Edmonds, of Butler county, is visiting her cousin, Miss Alice Edmonds, of near town.

Sheriff Elect, Stevens was on our streets a while Saturday.

J. B. Bir has made quite an addition to his Mill machinery, by placing in his Mill a ten-horse power, corn crusher.

The farmers would derive much more benefit from their corn they feed, if they would have it crushed.

ETNAVILLE.

Nov. 16.—We are reliably informed that we are to have a double wedding in our town soon. The marriage has not as yet been publicly announced.

Miss Missouri Loyd, who has been quite sick, will be able to enter school in a few days.

Quite an interesting series of meetings have been in progress at the Zion Baptist Church for several days. Baptising occurred Sunday, Nov. 13.

Dr. J. P. Williams, Owensboro, spent Sunday in our town.

Anderson Mercer will spend this week in Hartford.

Our school, taught by Miss Coleman, of Hartford, will be half out Friday, Nov. 25, at which time the teacher and pupils will entertain.

At this time a thorough examination of pupils will take up the greater part of the day. At night we are to enjoy an old fashioned "Spelling Skule."

C. M. Cole, Yeiser's young blacksmith, was shoeing a mule the other day when the unruly animal knocked him down and bruised his left wrist badly.

The schools of the county are in excellent working order. Never before has the interest among the people been so deep or so well directed, and never have teachers and students labored more earnestly. Ours is the banner school county.

Which place will furnish the largest crowd at the Thanksgiving Supper at Masonic Hall, Beaver Dam, Thursday night, McHenry, Hartford, Taylor Mines or Rosine? Besides these Cronwell, Rochester and Rockport should send good delegations.

The Return Reception, a mention of which was made in our last issue, at the Hartford House, was a very enjoyable affair. Mrs. Thomas, Mrs. Steele and Mrs. Lou Collins, assisted the young men in preparing the supper, which could not be excelled.

L. Worth Tichenor, of the Point Pleasant neighborhood, and by the way one of the best men and best farmers in Ohio county, recently delivered his crop of wheat at Beaver Dam. He raised four hundred bushels on seventeen acres—a pretty good yield for this country.

Two negroes, who had been at work on the new railroad, near Horse Branch, had a falling out last week, when one seized a Winchester rifle and fired, instantly killing the other. We failed to learn their names and any further particulars, more than the slayer escaped.

Last Saturday night while the Olton Democrats were ratifying Cleveland's election, Wesley Sea, who ought to have been in some better employment, was seriously hurt by the explosion of an anvil, a piece striking him on the shoulder. They Can't Stand Prosperity.

HARDINSBURG, KY., Nov. 17. The Democratic party is victorious again. The Republicans have been routed horses, foot and dragon. On Monday night, November the 14th, the Democrats of Hardinsburg and vicinity, held a glorification meeting over the election of Mr. Cleveland to the Presidency of the United States. It had been previously announced that a parade would be given, that would hurt the eyes of all beholders. Owing to circumstances, however, over which the Democracy had no control, no torches could be procured. Owing to other circumstances, over which the Democracy had no control, it rained hard that day, which resulted in a very disagreeable night. Owing to other circumstances which Democracy had no control, no large crowd materialized. Owing to other circumstances, over which Democracy had no control, the celebration that was to be observed with such great effect, completely "pettered" out.

In the place of waving plumes, flying banners and flying torches, a ghost dance was given by small boys, supplied with cow-bells, around the public square. At the city hall a small crowd assembled to listen to the burning eloquence, that was poured out like water by local talent. Several announced that it was good to be there. Others expounded the time honored and rock-ribbed principles of Democracy. By far the larger portion called upon, simply begged to be excused. It was truly disheartening to witness the want of enthusiasm.

The Democracy seems to realize that they have "bit off more than they can chew." They can't take care of their elephant. It must be remembered that their President, their platform and several factions of their party, all differ upon the questions of the day. Now is the time for Kentucky Republicans to make a ten strike. At this place, alone, there are already some eight or ten applicants for the post-office.

In a short time the whole party in this State will be in a squabble for the spoils. It was during Mr. Cleveland's term that Mr. Bradley made his magnificent race for Governor. The Democracy will lose sight of State affairs in their greed for the offices. This taken together with the fact that the party in this State has made through its legislature a remarkably assinine exhibition of itself, gives the Republicans a splendid opportunity to redeem this State from ruin. Let the bugle sound the battle cry! Let every Republican see that its echoes are sent flying from end to end of this Commonwealth. Democracy in this State must die.

ROBIN HOOD.

Two Ways of Expressing It. On trial for an assault, which took place at the assizes some years since, a medical witness in giving his evidence informed the court that on examining the prosecutor he found him suffering from a severe contusion of the integuments under the left orbit, with great extravasation of blood, and ecchymosis in the surrounding cellular tissue, which was in a tumefied state. There was also considerable abrasion of the cuticle.

Judge.—You mean, I suppose, that the man had a black eye?

Witness.—Yes.

Judge.—Then why not say so at once?—Exchange.

TOWN TATTLER

Continues his Visit—Finds Business Good—Writes an Interesting Communication.

And just as I was about going into the County Judge's office I remembered that I had failed to find J. E. Fogie when I called at his law office a few days ago, and so I went back to see if he was in. Sure enough he was there, and studying, too. Jesse is a close student and I'm glad to see him doing so well. He possesses that same quality of being a man of few words, but that few words always mean something. Well, well, up the next steps, whom should find, but that rising young attorney, James A. Smith? Jim's a brainy young fellow, perhaps a trifle modest, but with a coming man. He was reading somebody on jurisprudence when I went in, and, of course, the subject came up, naturally enough, for discussion. I settled it very quickly by saying that I had failed to find more than one or two juries that had any prudence, and that I was opposed to the jury system anyhow. Jim smiled and as I started I heard him say something under his breath about fool killer. I went into the County Judge's office, Judge Morton and Marshall, W. P. Thomas, were talking something about serving "spies," or something like that, and I asked if they were served before or after the desert, and the Judge said, biting his lips, that any time would do, but they were usually served between meals, and Billy remarked something about summoning a jury to try a lunatic and laughed, but I didn't see the fun so I went over to see Col. Barrett, across the hall. The Colonel was in his usual, jolly mood that has made him so popular, both as a newspaper man and cultured gentleman. He is Master Commissioner, you know, and just as our conversation was growing most interesting the hour arrived for the taking of depositions in some case or other and I took a reluctant leave. Next is the County Attorney's office and I went in finding Mr. Frank L. Felix busy engaged. Frank is all work and bull-dog tenacity. He's a kind of a stick-to-it-of a fellow, and by the way that's the quality that rules the world. I had noticed as I came that on the door was a card that said, "Police Judge's office," and I asked Frank who and where the Judge was. He said it was none other than Judge W. L. Hawkins and that he was over at the Herald office preparing his educational column for publication. But while he yet spoke in walked the Judge with his broad smile and said he was glad to see me. He is one of the oldest and most popular educators in the county, having taught for about forty years. Many of my associates, in my younger days, were students of his and I would have been, but like a good many youngsters of this generation, I was too smart to go to school, and hence the beech timber that grew for me, and which the Judge was so well able to handle, was never broken. A good natured, "come in" greeted my rap at the door across the hall I entered. Attorney J. P. Sanderson, was preparing a brief, at least he said it was, but it looked to me, rather extended, covering as it did, not less than eight pages of legal cap and that too, double interlined in that inexplicably intrinsic and snake track hand write, so exclusively the acquirement of the legal profession. John Sep Mosley, Dave Johnson and D. C. Hunley, were at work selling tax receipts, at par only. A tax receipt won't shave a little bit. And Sheriff Taylor, well, he was busy helping them. Calvin is a good fellow and it has always been a strange thing why some loving maid didn't take him all to herself for a term of ninety-nine years, or during his natural life. Girls he's honest and has got the rocks, what more could you ask?

But time flies these days, so I went over to see Uncle Jim and Owen. They were both busy waiting on customers. Uncle Jim is one of the best men I ever knew, and Owen, why, he's a regular home boy. He stays with the old folks and will succeed, while many a boy, who leaves the old folks will fail. Around the corner and up the steps, I found those able lawyers, Massie & Hayward, and that hustling business man and politician, T. J. Smith, with whom I had a pleasant stay, then spoke a few words to my old friend, Dr. J. S. Morton, and hurried on for time admonished me that if I didn't hustle as the boys say, I'd fail to get around.

Before I hardly knew it I was again on the ground, looking up and down the street, not knowing which way to go, whether to go on down the street or step down to see John J.—I will do the latter. I found that genial, whole-souled young fellow, John J. McHenry, sitting in his office reading the first volume of Blackstone and so intent was he, he hardly noticed that I had slipped in on him. He quickly arose, invited me to have a seat and began talking about legal lore. It seems that nearly every lawyer I have seen on my visit wants to talk law to me. I don't know why, for I never looked inside of a law book, nor do I have any aspirations in that direction, but all seem to think I ought to know all about it. After talking with John J. for awhile I left him to go into the law office of Walker & Rowe. Mr. Walker was sick, but I found Jake busy bringing a suit for Circuit Court. He was very much elated over his recent victory, and assured me he had nothing but kind feelings toward anyone. Mr. Rowe is a typical Kentucky gentleman, full of fun and good hard sense. The picture gallery is next on my way, and I will go in and see Mr. Davidson. Some may think I went in to have my picture made, but far be it from me to impose on a good natured man to the extent of breaking his camera. Everybody knows he would not risk his camera on me, so I will pass out into the streets again. Well, well, if here isn't Uncle Tom Duke's saddle shop and here he is busy at his work and just as jovial as he ever was. Did you know Hartford would be in a bad fix if it wasn't for such men as Tom Duke? Not needing anything in his line, I stayed only a short while and continued my journey on further down only to run into Kahn's Trade Palace before I hardly knew it. This is a favorite place of mine and I drop in every day to see Fred and the old man. They are a splendid pair, both full of fun and business. Why Fred Baruch can add up a column of figures before you can hardly count six, and another thing he does it the German language and I never know when he gets through, but he's always correct. Mr. Kahn is a splendid business man and has amassed a considerable fortune since he came to this country and is now doing a good business. "Hello," I heard someone say when I left Kahn's store, and looking in I saw my friend, C. R. Martin, in his new quarters, "let me sell you a ring for your best girl," he said, "I may be the happy possessor of such a noble creature, but I know nothing of it, for I have passed too far along the line of life for anyone to ever think of me, and I told Martin that I had no girl, and passed on to see Jim Williams making pills, and right well does he do it. Jim is a splendid young druggist and understands medicine well for one of his age and experience. I met Mr. Bell, a member of this firm, in the office, and was treated nicely by him. J. W. Lytle is also a member of the firm, but he was at the college teaching the young idea how to shoot and I didn't get to see him. Jim told me all about the party at the Hartford House last Friday night, and said I ought to have been there, but on looking at my wrinkled brow he changed his notion and said nothing more about it. M. L. Heavin is a good fellow and I believe I will go up and see if he wants wants to talk law to me and if he does I won't stay long. In I go and find Mr. Heavin reading a law journal, and the very first thing he does he calls my attention to a particular paragraph in a journal I never heard of. I excused myself and left him alone to get consolation from his law books. I met Mr. Lige Williams at the door of his grocery and he invited me in. I accepted the invitation and went in, sat down and stayed for a considerable time. He's a jolly old bachelor and could talk over things that had passed long ago, consequently time flew swiftly by and it was dinner time before I hardly knew it. I started down to the Hartford House to get my dinner, on my way I had to pass the feed store of J. W. Ford & Co., and I never could pass there without going in to see John Phipps and Mr. Ford, for they always have some funny jokes to tell that naturally takes one's mind away from the cares of every day life and they make me feel like life is worth living with all of its vicissitudes. But being hungry, I will go on down to the hotel and get my dinner before I walk out to the college and water mill. Mr. Howard is the gentlemanly proprietor and John Bell, the obliging clerk, and it goes without saying that I was treated well. Right here I want to thank Mr. Howard, for he wouldn't take any pay, and all I could do was to purchase some cigars and continue my stroll. Casabier & Burton's stable on the corner attracted my attention and I went over to see them awhile. A splendid set of boys around here. Perry was busy hitching a horse to a buggy. Tom was starting out with a road wagon. Sam was just ready to go to Beaver Dam. Mr. Casabier was hustling around keeping everything in order. Mr. Burton was at Beaver Dam, and altogether they were doing a good business. I will now start on my journey to the College and water mill. I will, of course, mount the large stone steps leading up to that grand institution of learning, known as Hartford College and Business Institute, and say that I am once more in the walls of a college, but not to pursue the arduous duty of reciting a lesson in geometry or telling about ancient history, but for the purpose of seeing how everything is moving along around this place. I find Dr. Alexander drilling a class in one room, O. M. Shultz with his class in another, J. W. Lytle in another, all busy instructing the young. The students, as a majority, seem to be intelligent, and only a few "sleepy headed" ones in the whole school.

The Intermediate Department was in charge of Richard Foster and right well he are doing. Miss Katie Coombes has charge of the Primary Department, and Miss Maggie Nall is musical instructor. The college has a good corps of teachers, and I enjoyed my visit very much. I will now walk out to the mill to see Dire White. I find Dire busy grinding and superintending everything about the mill. He is a member of the firm of J. W. Ford & Co., and a good fellow he is. After inspecting the mill until I was satisfied I began my homeward march, feeling that I had been much benefited by my entire visit, and in the language of the poet, I can say—
"My task is done, my song has ceased,
My theme has died into an echo,
The torch shall be extinguished which has lit my mid-night lamp—
The spell shall break of this protracted dream,
And what is writ is writ,
Would that I were worthier but I am not now.
And the vision flit less palpably before me,
And the glow which in my spirit dwelt is now fluttering faint and low."

He Is a Star.

"Dead Broke" Cyclist Wylie, of New York, who recently finished a trip from New York to Chicago on a safety without spending a cent, secured quite a lot of "valuable" autographs on the trip.

The keeper of a hostelry at Hancock, Md., wrote:
"I was honored by the dead beat stopping with me over night. Gentlemen, it is worth half a dollar to see the beat eat. Take a look at him. Let him sample your grub."

Other testimonials were recorded as follows:
"This is the hardest faced man I ever came across. He dropped into my place, sized up, and then gave a hungry sigh."

Another individual wrote as follows:
"I hope no more dead beats will stike the town; one is enough."

And at one place he was speeded on his way with the advice:
"Ride on—as your muscle increases, so will your estimate of humanity."

Some young ladies at Brownsville, Ohio, wrote: "This is no hotel, and we are no cooks, but gave him his dinner. Nellie, Julia and Clemmie."

Other autograph presentations read:
"We were all dead broke, when 'dead-broke' Wylie left us. Dayton Bicycle Club."

"Mr. Wylie's wheel is in need of lubrication. I am full of the milk of human kindness, and I am glad to give assistance."

Wylie is a native of Alabama, will be 24 years old in February, and weighs 133 pounds. His mount is a pneumatic-tired safety bicycle of generous weight, to which is attached a luggage carrier, a lamp and a placard reading, "New York and Chicago, dead broke."

Hindoo Witchcraft.
All Hindoos believe in witchcraft, and in strange contrast to the old believers in witchery, they believe that young and pretty maidens are the chief actors in such uncanny nummery. If crops are blighted or if a general sickness prevails they write the names of all the young women of the vicinity on separate tree branches and then immerse the stems of the twigs for four hours and a half in a solution of holy water and aromatic herbs. If one or more of the twigs wither during the specified time the young women whose names or names is attached thereto is immediately put to death. Thus the influence of the witch is counteracted, the crops saved and health restored.—St. Louis Republic.

What Pleases a Woman.
It pleases her to be called a sensible little woman.

It pleases her to be called a well dressed woman.

It pleases her to be told that she is dangerously fascinating.

It pleases her to be told that she improves a man by her companionship.

It pleases her to be loved and admired by a man who is strong enough to rule and subdue her and make his way her way. To lead her and take care of her.—Philadelphia Music and Drama.

A Story of an English Guard.
A story, illustrating the tenacity of custom in European communities, is that of the sentinel at a certain point in a public garden in London. Nobody knew why he was stationed at that particular point until some one, delving in old records, discovered that generations before a sentinel had been placed there to warn people of a newly painted bench.—Chicago Herald.

His Scythe Buried with Him.
The aged keeper of the Curfew tower, Windsor castle, years ago expressed a desire that the scythe with which he was wont to mow the lawn might be buried with him. Accordingly, after his coffin had been lowered into the grave, the scythe was carefully laid on it.—London Tit-Bits.

Chinese Paper Money.
The Chinese paper currency is in red, white and yellow, with gilt lettering and gorgeous little hand drawn devices. The bills to the ordinary financier might pass for washing bills, but they are worth good money in the flowery kingdom.—Golden Days.

Nearly Ready.
Little Boy—Papa, I wish you'd send me to college.

Papa—It will take a long time to prepare you for college, my son.

Little Boy—Huh! You just come down to the river and see me pull an oar.—Good News.

The Expansion Power.
It has been computed that a half note sheet will develop sufficient power, when burned in connection with the triple expansion engine, to carry a ton a mile in an Atlantic steamer.—Philadelphia Ledger.

No Snakes in the Ice Regions.
There is not a lizard or snake north of the southern extremity of Hudson's bay. The summers there are so short that these reptiles have no time to enjoy themselves even if they could at a depth of two or three feet below the surface were not frozen all the year round, thus depriving them of a place to hibernates. Snakes and lizards cannot endure a cold climate, and a latitude of 63 degrees north is altogether too frigid for them.—Interview in St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Cupidity Triumphed.

A woman got on the car the other day and as the conductor passed handed her fare up. He did not see her, and it was funny to watch proceedings as she struggled with her desire to be honest and the stronger one to beat the road out of one fare. Cupidity triumphed, however, and with a smile of satisfaction on her face she put the money back and thoroughly enjoyed that ride.—New York Recorder.

First Used for Sun.

It is probable that the umbrella, instead of being the child of the parasol, is its great-grandfather, for everything indicates that it was first used as a sun guard, and later on as a rain guard. As soon as it was found to be available in wet weather as well as in sunshine it branched off, and lo! the parasol was born. The French have their parapluies and ombrelles and their parasols; the Germans have their Regenschirm and their Sonnenschirm. It is believed that Italy was the first European country to adopt those conveniences which were first used as parasols, and after as umbrellas, until both were manufactured.—Detroit Free Press.

Thompson's Wit.

Some one at a college dinner made a rather offensive speech, when his neighbor heard Thompson say in a meditative manner, "He reminded me of his father." People near him turned, expecting some reminiscence of a laudatory kind, when he added, "He succeeded in being at once dull and flippant," then, after a short pause, "no uncommon combination."—Gentleman's Magazine.

Yes and No.

In the speech of so highly developed people as the Celts there is an equivalent to "yes," thus it happens that you shall never hear an Irish waiter pronounce the shibboleth "yessir" of his English confrere, for he invariably expresses an affirmative by some such phrase as "I shall, sir." "It is, sir."—Blackwood's Magazine.

COYOTE STRATEGY.
How the Tawny Army of Hungry Brutes Captured the Prey.

In the dim light of the early morning in certain parts of the Humboldt, Penamag, Missouri and other valleys may be seen a queer tawny army, marshaled in some places by dozens and in others by scores. The army is called together by a reveille, and soon thereafter the strange music which breaks the stillness of the desert swells into a chorus participated in by all the members of the tawny troop.

It is the gathering of the coyotes, and they are out, their appetites sharpened by the crisp air, to gain their regular breakfast of jerked jack rabbit meat. There is a sniffling among the sage and greasewood by the avant couriers of the sharp toothed brigade. Meantime all the others have been deployed in such a manner that when a fleet footed jack has been raised from his lair he is passed on and on. The coyotes usually arrange themselves in the form of a long ellipse. Thus the jack, however large and strong, and whether fleet as the wind, is sure to at last weary himself.

He cannot get out, for a wily coyote at every turn checks him and keeps him in the ellipse and in the lead of his pursuer. When the coyote in pursuit tires, another, fresh as the air of the morning, takes up the chase. Thus an untiring Nemesis is always after him, and at due time the tired, panting rabbit falls a prey to the yellow troop.

At the death they all rush in, their jaws working like fast flying shear blades. The rabbit is cut in pieces, snapped up and eaten, and then another weird reveille is sounded and another jack is started up; and thus they go for two or three hours sometimes, until the hunger of all is appeased.

This hunting in troops enables each of the brigade of coyotes to get a good meal. If but one of the coyotes were to start after the rapidly flying jack he would become quickly winded without affecting the jack what ever; but with relays of coyotes, and one always to take up the chase when the other is tired, victory soon perches on their banner.

The coyote army is most scientifically generated. The commander-in-chief, a veteran of the chase, usually sits on some slight eminence, his lieutenant and aids being in full view to repeat his orders.

Never was there a better drilled army than this of the coyotes. What they don't know about maneuvering, ambuscades and the tactics of the field generally it will take a long time to find out. I have studied them much. It is one of the most interesting sights of the desert to see the marshaling of the coyotes at the sounding of the weird reveille and watch their capture of the rabbits.—Colonel Joseph Grandelmyer.

COYOTE STRATEGY.
How the Tawny Army of Hungry Brutes Captured the Prey.

In the dim light of the early morning in certain parts of the Humboldt, Penamag, Missouri and other valleys may be seen a queer tawny army, marshaled in some places by dozens and in others by scores. The army is called together by a reveille, and soon thereafter the strange music which breaks the stillness of the desert swells into a chorus participated in by all the members of the tawny troop.

It is the gathering of the coyotes, and they are out, their appetites sharpened by the crisp air, to gain their regular breakfast of jerked jack rabbit meat. There is a sniffling among the sage and greasewood by the avant couriers of the sharp toothed brigade. Meantime all the others have been deployed in such a manner that when a fleet footed jack has been raised from his lair he is passed on and on. The coyotes usually arrange themselves in the form of a long ellipse. Thus the jack, however large and strong, and whether fleet as the wind, is sure to at last weary himself.

He cannot get out, for a wily coyote at every turn checks him and keeps him in the ellipse and in the lead of his pursuer. When the coyote in pursuit tires, another, fresh as the air of the morning, takes up the chase. Thus an untiring Nemesis is always after him, and at due time the tired, panting rabbit falls a prey to the yellow troop.

At the death they all rush in, their jaws working like fast flying shear blades. The rabbit is cut in pieces, snapped up and eaten, and then another weird reveille is sounded and another jack is started up; and thus they go for two or three hours sometimes, until the hunger of all is appeased.

This hunting in troops enables each of the brigade of coyotes to get a good meal. If but one of the coyotes were to start after the rapidly flying jack he would become quickly winded without affecting the jack what ever; but with relays of coyotes, and one always to take up the chase when the other is tired, victory soon perches on their banner.

The coyote army is most scientifically generated. The commander-in-chief, a veteran of the chase, usually sits on some slight eminence, his lieutenant and aids being in full view to repeat his orders.

Never was there a better drilled army than this of the coyotes. What they don't know about maneuvering, ambuscades and the tactics of the field generally it will take a long time to find out. I have studied them much. It is one of the most interesting sights of the desert to see the marshaling of the coyotes at the sounding of the weird reveille and watch their capture of the rabbits.—Colonel Joseph Grandelmyer.
